A CHANCE TO PUBLISH. . .

My inconstant companion, Deadline, the she cat, is mending after near-disastrous conditions required Cesaerian section by Dr. Tommy Barton, the vet who reports touch-and-go for a few more days.

The pattern is identical to what happened to Sno, a white longhair Persian which lasted for 19 years, who underwent Cesaerian section and hysterectomy before taking on all those years.

A cat or dog, I'm told, lives the equivalent of 7 people years every year it lives. Which means Sno was about 133 when she failed.

Sno was wrapped up like a sausage midsection for several weeks while everything mended. I imagine Deadline is unaware of the gause cumberbund the vet gave her.

I report this because Deadline inspires more than common interest among readers of this column and these pages. Comment on Deadline's observations on everything from Kojak, the New York cop, to armadillos has been generous enough for us to run her picture in earlier days of copybasket decorum.

Frankly, with kitten(s), she was beyond moving from copybasket to copybasket. Something banged up her hip prior to other complications which only the vet can explain.

I think most people get as mushy as I do about house pets, even an obscure shorthair, white cat. Texans are deeply attached to their horses, if they have any, because of an inexplicable loyalty which develops between animal and owner-rider.

In Deadline's case, it was heavy on the side of convenience. Cats are that way: quiet unless they want to be heard, independent unless they are hungry or want a backscratch, intelligent unless they are rousted into yellow-eyed anger. (Blue eyes for some Siamese.)

I am apparently a pushover for white cats. Deadline is the third in 20 years, preceded by a gray Persian who lasted seven or eight until she panicked into apoplexy at the sight of a warehouse rat.

It may be that subconsciously I am demonstrating my humanity by showing affection for felines. Cats are only impressed, however, when their human delivers the goods, allows the proper comfort, and otherwise surrenders control over whatever environment cats find desirable.

The gray Persian of years ago telegraphed her ultimate end one day in the kitchen of a Midwest house.

A small mouse, no more than the length of a rat's tail, rustled around in a wastebasket under the sink. It was the sound which attracted the cat.

Somebody picked up the cat by the stomach and hindquarters and stuck her face into the basket. There was daylight enough at the bottom to identify a mouse and a mug-eyed cat.

There was no holding the cat, and the mouse nearly ruptured trying the vertical sides of the wastebasket. The human dropped the cat, which trailed imaginative swirls of hair down the cellar stairs to the coalbin, and the mouse cleared the basket and seemed to furrow a linoleum floor out the backdoor.

One look at a rat those few years later stunned the Persian to death.

If Deadline survives,I imagine she will be quite another problem. She deserves a long life, at least long enough for The Herald to pay for the multiple services she requires.

I think the vet said something about a percentage on her memoires.

Rescue Unit Saves Drowning Victim

The Cameron volunteer fire department rescue unit was called to the city swimming pool Monday evening about 7:15 to treat a young Cameron boy who nearly drowned in the pool.

The boy is Gerald Wilkerson, 9, who was treated and released at St. Edward Hospital after he was revived with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by firemen at the pool.

The boy and friends were playing at who could stay down under water the longest, and Gerald failed to come up from the bottom.

OLD LAKE TAKES NEW SHAPE—Work continues on the lake at Ledbetter Park with buldozers scraping the bottom and building up the dam. Last week's rain provided the first water in the enlarged, deepened lake. When it is full, it will be stocked with fish for the pleasure of those who come to the park to fish and picnic.

TRUSTEES RESTORE SHUTTLE BUS SERVICE FOR SCHOOLS

The Cameron school board voted 3-2 to restore shuttle bus service after a group of some 25 parents appeared at the Monday night meeting protesting the board decision to stop the service.

Discussion grew heated at some points, with parents (mostly with students in junior high) stating that their children could not walk or ride a bike home from the junior high school.

Elementary principal Bob Martin explained that the teachers, by law, are to be allowed a 45-minute period for lesson preparation or conferences, and this time is set from 3 until 3:45. He said these teachers could not be pulled from their time to watch children waiting for the bus.

And he added that Title I aides can not be used to supervise the children waiting for the bus. He said the biggest problem is finding enough qualified personnel to supervise the children.

Trustee Billy Hornung said he would like for parents to give the administration a chance to work it out and see if the school could do without shuttle buses. He said he sees kids riding all over town, and some beat the bus back to the schools.

Parents spoke of the traffic congestion at school, and said their children could not walk to school when it is raining or the weather is freezing

Supt. Buddy Dulin said there is a problem with children who won't go home after being transported to junior high from the Ben Milam and Ada Henderson campus, and this adds to the load for supervising personnel.

John Henderson said it would be hard for first and second graders and kindergarten students to have to walk and cross the highway on the way to school. He made a motion to go back to the shuttle bus service with personnel to supervise to be paid out of local funds.

In the discussion that followed that motion, Betsy Brown said this was saddling Martin with a problem. Some of the parents said the board had acted without discussion when they voted to shut down the bus service.

Board presidentCalvin Cobb said the problems had been discussed at a prior meeting before action was taken.

Joe Walzel seconded the motion and vote was: voting for were Carol Barr, Walzel, and Henderson. Voting against was Hornung and Brown.

After hearing from archtect John Allen who listed deletions possible on the gym renovation, trustees voted to go ahead with original plans and come up with $39,000 to add to the $100,000 budgeted for the work.

Dulin said if the job was "piecemealed now, we'll peicemeal later," This was in reference to putting off some of the work until funds were available later on.

Board voted to reject all bids on construction and wil l consider other alternatives, such as using local labor on the job. It was noted that this would probably mean the job taking longer to complete. This will be discussed at a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. August 25.

In other business, trustees voted to accept the resignation of John Cooksey, and to hire Edward Whitely and Mary Kay King. For the compensatory program, board hired Betty Harmon, Hilda Jones, and Mary Tom Moody. For the Title I program, Maxie Morgan was named director with Myrtle Kelley, Rosemary Freeman, and Ginger Beaty as teachers. Aides are Dorothy Vaculin, Leota Thweatt, Rosa Haines, Alma Flores, Bobby Looney, Ethel Marek, and Theodora Marek.

Commissioners Set Tax Rate

Milam County commissioners set the tax rate for 1975-76 at 95 cents, the same as in past years, and voted to hold a budget hearing at 9 a.m. on August 29.

In other business Monday morning, commissioners again approved the Elm Creek Watershed plan, which has been approved in Washington and is now ready for a start. Milam County is one of seven sponsors of the watershed and its responsibility will be that of maintaining structures after they are completed.

The county is also sponsoring a RC&D plan, presented by Wayne Mann at the meeting for approval.

County Judge O. B. Harden read a letter from the Board of County and District Indebtness which said the county will receive $35,794 surplus funds which will be used for road and bridge work.

Commissioners voted to refund $3.33 to a woman who paid the tax in error, tabled again a request from the Department of Interior to increase the wolf trapper's salary $25 a month, and tabled decision on a service contract for the elevator which has been increased to $1,144.

Charles Cass, executive director of the Central Texas Council of Governments, explained tha he is trying to form a delegation of county and city officials, and members of civic clubs to go to Washington every quarter or six months to testify before congressional committees and agencies and meet with Congressmen. Purpose is to give input from residents and officials on bills coming before Congress.

Buzz McKethan, also from CTCOG, outlined a rent supplement plan offered by Housing and Urban Development in which the county will receive $100,000. He said CTCOG is ofering to handle the program in a centralized office so that duplicate offices will not have to be set up.

He said if this were handled on a regional basis, he feels sure that the county would get more units for the supplements. Under present plans the county would have 76 units of which 61 would be for Cameron, 10 for Rockdale, and 5 for Thorndale.

Registration Set For High School, Junior High

Registration has been set for Yoe High School and for O. J. Thomas Junior High, with students coming in next week to register for the coming school year.

High school seniors will register Tuesday, August 19 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon in the high school office. Registration for juniors on Tuesday afternoon from 1-4 in the high school office.

On Wednesday, August 20, registration will be held for sophomores from 9 a.m. until 12 noon in the high school office.

On Thursday, freshmen and new students whose surnames begin with A-M will register from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. Freshmen and new students whose surnames begin with N-Z will register from 1 until 4 p.m. in the high school office.

A high school orientation program for students will be held Thursday. This will be to inform students so that their transition from junior high to high school might be made easier. This will be held in the gymnasium.

All new students need to bring their health records at the time of registration.

JUNIOR HI REGISTRATION

New junior high students will register from 9 a.m. until 12 noon on Wednesday, August 20. Other students will register on Thursday from 9 to 11:30 and from 1 until 3:30 p.m.

Classes for Cameron schools will start on Monday, August 25. A hot weather schedule will be observed, with classes starting at 8 a.m. and dismissing at 2 p.m.

Hometown Vocalist Pamela Neeley To Present Recital

It's Pamela--not Pam--Neeley and the New York professional is introducing her mezzo-soprano repertoire in recital 2:30 p.m. Sunday at First Baptist Church, Cameron.

Her accompaniest is Ms. Jane Smith, of Cameron.

Seven years in New York City, study and work in musical comedy have brought an Eastern polish to this Cameron vocalist, a 1965 graduate of Yoe High School. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Neeley, of Cameron. He is a foreman for Alcoa's Rockdale Works and she is active in women's bowling league leadership.

Recalling herself somewhat a "wallflower in high school," this dark-haired soloist is verbal, but not verbose about a career which moved rapidly in 1973 from understudy to an operetta lead in Philadelphia. A John Phillip Sousa operetta was her vehicle, a show called "El Capitan" which also is one of the Sousa marches.

Ms. Neeley sang in the choir of First Baptist Church and in the YHS choir directed by bandsman Frances Cox, whose early influence may have "turned" Pamela on when the lead role opened in Phillie. She's now only 27.

Pamela played percussions in the YHS band, played interscholastic league tennis on the strength of a solid forehand, and worked in YHS Junior Historians, of which the current membership is ushering for the recital Sunday afternoon. A reception follows in First Baptist Fellowship Hall.

Poise in conversation translates into presence on stage and Ms. Neeley evidences both in "taking on the toughest audience in the world," her hometown, her parents and family, and people who remember the adolescent, but who will be pleased to meet the young woman she is.

One proof of her versatility is the gamut of musical authorship she is singing Sunday. It's not a church recital, but it's in a church acoustically ready for George and Ira Gershwin melodies, Charles Ives, Purcell, a Rossini aria among a few "surprises" which she correctly guards for her audience.

Pamela has been making adjustments in a career-impacted personal life by teaching handwriting analysis and practicing Yoga, which is an Oriental art of melding physical and mental concentration.

She keeps a journal of her observations and personal experiences which apparently contributes to a facility for direct answers to direct questions in interview.

Looking beyond life in a New York apartment, Ms. Neeley wants to have a place in the Connecticutt countryside where she can weekend, write her journal, and otherwise leave the consuming congestion of "the City" a couple days a week.

She recalls recently closing herself in one weekend in her apartment during a "temperature inversion" which hung air pollution over the city about 48 hours. Pamela belies her New York enthusiasm when she talks about what's happened to Gotham, one-time synonym for the nation's largest city.

Pamela rides her 10-speed Peugot as often as she can, cycling for the exercise through Central Park and in areas around her GreenwichVillage apartment, which is in an Italian neighborhood. (She is studying Italian as a second language, a good one to know for a student of opera and classical music.)

Like many show business professionals, she stays trim by watching diet. She likes Yogurt and health foods, particularly fresh vegetable juices.

Her studies in seven years have been both in voice and dance. The recital Sunday was put together with assistance of vocal coaches atuned to each of the different types of composition. In a sense, she is her own producer for this home debut.

She has sung with operetta cast in Goodspeed Opera House, East Haddem, Conn., and in Ford Theatre, Washington, D. C., the place where Lincoln was shot, which was refurbished for modern theatre and musical in the late 1960s. These are not small-time houses.

In fact, it's a long way from college and hometown Cameron, Central Texas, which she acknowledges has changed perhaps as much as her talents in seven years.

Pamela--not Pam--has moxie, which is probably a Yankee term for ability and courage. And if she sings half as well as she has done in talent-laden New York, she's going to raise some Texas pride in that long trip east.

New York City is just about the toughest town in the world to "make it" in music.

Santa Fe 'Ties' To 21st...

The Herald of August 11 showed a view of Santa Fe Railroad's new tie treating plant in Somerville.

Interesting thing about the $5 million system is that Santa Fe anticipates the project will be adequate until the year 2000.

That's the kind of foresight which Central Texas is getting more of all the time.

Somerville brackets to the southeast and Temple to the west that area of Central Texas which is literally turning toward the next century. Scott & White Hospital and Clinic, for example, dedicated a new $9.6 million building and expansion last week, part of a 10-year expansion program. It was dedicated by Lady Bird Johnson.

Lake Somerville is another improvement at the Burleson County community, which will see a sister lake created in Williamson County to Milam's west with Bartlett Lake (Laneport Dam).

And, of course, leasing of coal sites in East Milam, Robertson Counties portends a boom of lignite mining of yet undetermined proportions. Energy problems are now turning Milam's favor.

The Somerville improvement is becoming typical of this part of Texas. The town itself is about 1,500 people.

We are aware of the numerous projects in Cameron, the latest being parks and recreation facilities and removal of dozens of dilapidated houses, mostly empty and abandoned.

The smaller towns of Central Texas are turning to the 21st century, which by the way might be a good name for a Santa Fe passenger train someday when high-speed rail transportation augments the phaseout of federal superhighway budgets.

The ties at least are getting a new century's treatment.

Pricing Detente...

Agriculture Secretary Butz wisely has asked U. S. grain traders to await final estimates of the 1975 corn crop before advancing further Soviet grain deals.

A record corn crop, now expected to be 3 percent less, will be almost 25 percent greater than a year ago, USDA sources say.

Soybeans are anticipated up 18 percent and wheat up 19 percent, these estimates over 1974 allowing the margin to trade in millions of metric tons with Russia or other foreign customers.

Three years ago, a grain deal with Russia contributed to food price increases of exasperating import to the American public. This year, Butz is not cavaliering with supply and demand to the point of activating another round of food price inflation. The American public will not accomodate him or any such Administration miscalculation.

Assuming an average of almost 20 percent increase in the basic soybean, corn, and wheat harvests, the U. S. can afford to export without inordinate fear of shortages which would kick off new rounds of price increases.

It is apparent that our great export commodity is agriculture products, but we need not advance food prices in this country in the hope of advancing detente with the Soviet bloc.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

TV DRUG ADVERTISING AFFECTING CHILDREN

Sen. Charles H. Percy (Ill.) ". . .The Subcommittee on Communications of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee held some very informaitive hearings on the subject of children's television advertising.

"Chairman Tobert McDonald and ranking minority member, Louis Frey Jr., have brought to our attention the need for further vigilance in order to insure the welfare of our children. . .

"Attorney General Frances X. Bellotti, of the Commonwealth of Massachuetts, addressed himself to this particular area in his testimony before the subcommittee

"I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record excerpts fromAttorney General Bellotti's noteworthy testimony. . ." (Excerpts follow):

We in Massachuetts are particularly concerned about the short and long-term impacts of over-the-counter drug advertising on children. In this regard, I believe the Federal Communications Commission has the authority and the responsibility to insure that children are protected from the aggressive marketing of over-thec-counter drugs.

A few years ago, the Commission indicated a concern about the promotion of a "drug culture" ethic on rock music radio shws. In response, the Commission forced off the air all songs with lyrics relating to drugs.

Madison Avenue, over the airways encourages every one including children, to take drugs to get up, to stay awake, to stay slim, healthy, and attractive, to eliminate minor pain or discomfort, and to go to sleep.

The seriousness of the over-the-counter drug consumption is underscored by the fact that in 1973 approximately 27,000 children were poisoned by non-prescription drugs (Source: FDA Divisionof Poison Control.)

I believe that children will have enough time to find out about the virtues of Geritol. I do not believe that we should allow children to be subjected to high powered advertising of products they are too young and innocent to understand.

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

In 1972 over $313,000,000 was spent in advertising drugs on television. (See Broadcasting Year Book, 1974). It's too mucb to expect self-regulation by either drug companies or the networks. Yet another Federal regulation may be needed.

Carrillo Impeachment Trial Set In Senate

First Texas impeachment trial in 44 years is scheduled in the State Senate September 3.

A 10-count impeachment resolution against 229th District Judge O. P. Carrillo was voted by the House of Representatives August 5 by an overwhelming margin (128-16).

Gov. Dolph Briscoe fixed the trial date in cooperation with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, presiding officer of the Senate.

Leon Jaworski, Houston attorney who was chief Watergate prosecutor, will serve as special counsel for the Senate during the expected lengthy trial.

Terry Doyle of Port Arthur will serve as House special prosecutor.

Impeachment proceedings have been voted against only three Texas officials in the last century and just one, former Gov. James E. Ferguson, actually was removed from office and forbidden to run again. A two-thirds vote of the Senate is necessary for removal.

Carrillo stands charged with a variety of wrongs, including abuse of judicial powers, political conspiracies and using county personnel and property for his personal benefit.

Campaign On

Advocates of a new constitution have opened campaign headquarters and named a campaign director for an all-out effort to begin soon after Labor Day.

The election is scheduled November 4.

A rival "Committee to Preserve the Present Texas Constitution" also has filed necessary legal papers with the Secretary of State but has scheduled no activities.

Rep. Ronald Earle of Austin will head the campaign office for "Citizens for the Texas Constitution." Former State Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert is in overall charge.

Atty. Gen. John Hill, House Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby are among strong supporters of revision.

Governor Briscoe said he still has reservations about the legislative and financial articles, but has not decided whether to offer strong opposition.

Comptroller Bob Bullock is opposed to local government and financial articles but backs judiciary, legislative and executive article changes.

The AFL-CIO expressed opposition to judiciary and local government articles.

Tax Hike Disputed

Texas Research League disputes claims that the new state school finance law is forcing steep local tax increases.

In nearly all instances, said TRL, increases in the local share of school costs can be absorbed by shifting tax dollars from so-called "enrichment" programs into local Foundation matching fund requirements. Raising taxes is a local choice, according to TRL.

AG Opinions

An act granting veterans preference in governmental employment is valid, although a five-year residency requirement may be unconstitutional, Attorney General Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

- County regulatory authority over solid waste disposal within cities is limited to licensing disposal sites.
- The prison system has no authority to require inmates getting college education benefits to apply for federal veterans aid or to make reimbursement.
- Port of Beaumont Navigation District may own and operate facilities within the Port of Orange, but must serve only the Beaumont district. Property and facilities may be leased to an individual or corporation for private industrial use.
- A Dallas County deputy sheriff may not also be a city councilman.
- Galveston County may not divert to other road projects $5 million in bond proceeds committed to Bolivar Crossing.
- A&M University may erect permanent improvements on certain land owned by the system subject to reversion to the U.S.

Insurance Hike Asked

Insurance industry spokesmen have urged the State Insurance Board to fix homeowners policy rates on an annual basis, rather than the traditional three-year period.

As an alternative, the industry urged a 22 per cent increase in the three-year premium. Inflation and unexpected losses were cited. The Board raised rates 19.3 per cent last January.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

I have never given much thought to Women's Liberation except to conclude it's all right with me so long as the meals are on the table on time, but I'm now convinced men ought to be giving more attention to the subject. There' s something there to be learned.

For instance, examine Indira Gandhi, the woman Prime Minister of one of the world's most populous countries and frequently pointed to as a prime example of women's ability to become political leaders.

When Mrs. Gandh i was found guilty of violating India's election laws and was faced with being barred from office, what does she do, hem and haw and dodge and hire a batter y of lawyers and lie on televison like a man would do? Of course not. She just got a law passed saying the law she violated wasn't there any more, never was in the first place, and anybody who objected was jailed.

I have not had the nerve to ask in the presence of women whether any of the people she jailed were women.

Changing the subject, which I'd better do in a hurry, I noticed that some environmentalists, bent on protecting all species except possibly fleas when they're on their dogs in their city apartments, have now come out against the story of Little Red Riding Hood, on the grounds that it "has done great damage to wolves by making them a symbol of evil."

Of course they're right about this. All that wolf did was eat up a grandmother and appropriate her clothes and eye glasses, which obviously she had no further use for. Grandmothers are not an endangered species and these slanders on wolves have got to stop.

It's the same thing with coyotes and sheep. Ranchers are always denouncing coyotes for destroying their flocks, whereas it's the sheep's fault for being so helpless. Why don't they take care of themselves and grow a shell like an armadillo? Nobody's going to pull the wool over an enviornmentalist's eyes. If they'd been here earlier, we'd still have dinosaurs and a lot less oil to squabble over.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

BUENOS AIRES

Whatever the outcome of Argentina's political and economic crisis, the national economy has taken a battering and the country's future leaders will need months, perhaps years, to regain lost ground. There is cautious optimism that the country, rich in natural resources and with an intelligentsia and skilled labor force of European level, will bounce back as soon as political problems are solved.

LONDON

Britain's governing Labour Party could be facing a threat to its unity because of determined young left-wingers working from labour branch offices in dingy back rooms. The fact that their activities could produce a party split is worrying many labour veterans, particularly after this week's moves to end the political career of Cabinet Minister Reg Prentice.

WASHINGTON

The end of the recession may not mean the end of inflation. That was the message many economists read into the recent news that consumer prices shot up in June by 0.8 percent, an annual rate of 10 percent. The news caught the administration's economists almost totally by surprise and jolted officials out of the euphoris mood brought on my earlier reports pointing to the end of economic turndowns.

SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA

The Organization of American States (OAS) will lift its economic and diplomatic sanctions against Cuba after tightening up the western hemisphere's mutual defense treaty. The region's foreign miniters and their deputies meet on Tuesday to approve a resolution lifting the sanctions, and thus pave the way toward ending the 11-year isolation of Cuba from most of its neighors.

Grain Varieties Test Evaluated

By Bill McCutchen'

W. E. Beckhusen's grain sorghum variety test in the Little River bottom has for years helped producers size up new varieties. It takes more than one year to size up dependability in a variety, but the place to make a start is in a small plot and not make serious yield losses in large plots.

Producers owe a lot of thanks to people like Beckhusen, Frank Kratochvil, Doyal Arnold, and John A. Smith for taking their time, effort, and land in testing these varieties for the benefit of all producers in the county.

In Beckhusen's variety test this year Horizon 95 was tops with 6444 pounds per acre; McNair 650-6024#; Acco R1029A-5763#; Warner 869-5763#; Horizon 35-5600#; Warner 839-5594#; NK262-5492#;Pioneer 846- 5459#; ORO DR-5394#; ACCO DR 19095-5318.25#; Golden Acres TE 88A-5260#; Warner 8366-5161#; DeKalb D42-5156; Funks G589-5140#; Conlee Grande-4984#;DeKalb D58-4862#; NK 266A-4715#; and Crown Q68-42265#.

Grain sorghum was really coming in the last of last week with $4.75 being offered locally and market indications still strong.

Per acre yields have not lived up to my expectations, but I wasn't othe only one fooled. I was estimating a 3,000# per acre average county-wide but have since hoped we would average 2,500#. Size of the grain is small and bushel weight is low in most instanced.

Robert Clark of Milam Grain says he expects the total harvest to be larger than last year, but this will come off of increased acreage.

About 60,000 acres were planted last year and I am estimating 75,000 acres plus in 1975.

Ag Exports Vital, Says Senator

LUBBOCK

State Senator Kent Hance of Lubbock told Texas county agents here Tuesday (Aug. 5) that agricultural exports are central to a strong American economy.

"A strong economy is the only way for the United States to hold its strong military position in the world," said Hance, addressing the annual meeting of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association.

"Our unfavorable balance of trade payments were partly the result of increased U. S. labor costs prompting industries to shift their production to other countries where labor is much cheaper. The products were, in turn, imported back to America, thus causing a gold flow away from our economy," he stated

"Not until we export large amounts of agricultural products did this payment balance trend reverse itself," Hance concluded.

GRAIN IS POURING IN from fields across the state. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reports that though carry-over stocks are down in Texas, this year's production of sorghum and wheat are expected to fill the elevators and farm silos.

Meeting Open To Cattlemen

By John E. Snell

A winter temporary pasture and permanent pasture meeting will be held on Monday night. August 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Conference Room of the First National Bank in Cameron.

Dr. J. N. Pratt, pasture specialst from the Texas A&M University Extension Service, will conduct the meeting.

Dr. Pratt will discuss winter pasture programs and permanent pastures including the new Callie Bermuda Grass.

The current cattle market situation is not very good, but the production of adequate forages is still the most economical way to produce beef in cow-calf enterprises. All interested cattlemen are invited to attend this meeting.

Cow Herd Profits Tied To ReproductivePerformance

How important is a 90 percent or better calf crop at today's low market prices?

The number of calves weaned from all breeding cows in the herd at the start of the breeding season is more important today than ever as cattlemen try to stay in business, believes Don Parks, area economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Increasing the percent calf crop is second only to increasing market prices when considering ways to improve profits.

Calf crops vary from 60 percent to 90 percent and over in today's herds. The 60 percent crop may be due to inadequate nutrition, limited genetic capability, semen infertility, or disease. Whatever the cause, it must be identified and corrected, nontends Parks. Some producers feel that the depressed market will not justify feeding cows as well as when prices are good. This is not true when nutrition is limited enough to delay the cow's heat cycle and conception.

Parks estimates at $7.80 the cost per cow of each 21-day heat cycle delay, considering a 26-cent per pound market price, a 1.6 pound daily gain, a 90 percent calf crop, alnd all calves being weaned the same time. A rancher who cannot adequately feed cows so they return to estrus shortly after calving, cannot afford to keep them.

Another way to look at the expense of low percent calf crops is by figuring the production cost per pound at different calf crops. For exaple, out-of-pocket pasture, livestock, and labor expenses of maintainging a cow a year in South Central Texas approach $125. Considering a 450-pound weaning weight, the production cost per pound would be 31 cents with a 90 percent calf crop but 46 cents with a 60 percent calf crop. Adding the annual fixed cost to the $125 out-of-pocket cost will increase the production cost per pound even more, points out the economist.

After correcting the environmental limitations of reproduction, such as nutrition and diseases, Parks advises beef producers to consider the genetic reproductive capability of the cow. Herd records are useful in identifying the breeding regularity of each cow. Such records frequently indicate that a cow identified as a slow breeder will continually be a slow breeder. Eliminating such cows from the herd can increase the herd's reproductive performance and provide better replacement heifers.

Palpating cows 45 days after removing bulls is helpful in elimintating non-breeders or slow breeders. As calves are weaned, the unbred cow can be sold. This eliminates the feeding expenses of keeping the cows until the next calving season.

Increasing the reproductive performance of the cow herd is a profitable management practice, contends the economist.

Forbs Vital To Grazing

Importance of forbs, or palatable weeds, is sometimes overlooked by livestockmen when evaluating their overall range program.

As a typical native forb, heath aster (Aster ericoids L.) is a common component of range vegetation throughout the United States.

Dr. M. M. Kothmann, range scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, says heath aster's relatively high palatability to sheep and cattle, its ability to withstand heavy grazing, and its adaptability to different soils and climates mark it as an important forage plant.

The forb's nutrient content and utilization were outlined by Kothmann when he spoke during the 67th annual meeting of the American Society of Animal Science July 28-30 at Colorado State University.

He said heath aster leaves were significantly higher in crude protein than stems, with leaves averaging 12 percent and stem 2.5 percent. Dry matter digestibility, CP and ash content of leaves were highest in March. Digestibility of leaves varied from 71 to 81 percent. Nutrient content of stems also was highest in March, but declined rapidly as maturity increased.

Caged and uncaged plots were used to determine degree of grazing by cattle. Its use was comparable to that of the dominant grasses.

Kothmann noted that grazing of heath aster appeared to encourage re-growth from crown buds and rhizomes.

Grain Exports Help Keep Cattle Prices Higher

LUBBOCK

Imagine headlines proclaiming "U. S. Cattle Feeders Demand Import of 11 Million Head of Cattle. Beef Prices Plunge To 15 Cents A Pound."

Cattle feeders would never do that, but they are doing the same thing when they seek an embargo on U. S. grain exports, claims Elbert Harp. executive director of the national Grain Sorghum Producers Association and Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board.

Harp, who also chairs the U. S. Feed Grains Council, Washington, D. C., said that the grain which was exported last year would have added beef equivalent to 11 million head of cattle, had the campaign to halt grain exports been successful.

He pointed out that between October 1, 1974, and July 4, 1975, U. S. exports of corn and sorghum totaled 1 billion, 97 million bushels. Assuming that each steer weighing 600 pounds required 40 bushels of grain to fatten, ti to a weight of 1,000 pounds, the exported grain could have fattened 27 million more cattle than were already fattened. The additional gains would have totaled 11 billion pounds of live beef, or the equivalent of 11 million head of new cattle.

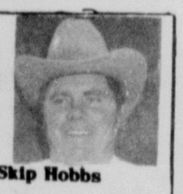
"Since beef markets were already saturated and the cattle industry in serious trouble, more cattle would have made an intolerable situation even worse," Harp said.

He continued, "Grain exports have proven to be financially beneficial--even essential--for the cattle feeder who might otherwise have little means of restricting total beef production."

Harp said grain producers, when faced with a grain surplus and low prices, often turn to feeding cattle themselves in an attempt to recoup looses and meet their cost of production.

"So cattle feeders should think tiwice before assuming that an embargo on grain exports will help them by lowering grain prices," the feed grain executive concluded. "Surplus grain means surplus beef and often spells bankruptcy for producers or both commodities."

TEXAS TALK



By Skip Hobbs

"Pork needs a report card" is being heard as a common exhortation throughout the swine industry. Movements to nudge the USDA into development of practical consumer grades for pork are gaining momentum. The American Farm Bureau Federation, a prominent voice for this campaign, points out two favorable factors in this issue. Many believe swine producers are being underpaid for producing top quality hogs. In addition, consumers need to know the quality of pork they buy. Among the problems concerning establishment of such a grading system are the differences in marketing pork products compared to other meat cuts and in the wide use of name brand advertising for bacons and hams. Proponents of the grading system idea believe development of the system will increase demand, educate the consumer to better buying methods and compensate the producer of really top quality hogs.

JUST AVERAGE BUT STILL FAILING...GOOD NEWS AND BAD NEWS FOR LIVESTOCK...CROP HARVESTS MOVING ON.

With all the flak raised recently by the sales of grain to Russia it might be wise to put the farm income situation in proper perspective. Because of modest increases in prices of wheat and sorghum to producers, consumers have been warned to expect higher and higher prices for food.

It is interesting to note, however, that during the past year or so wheat prices have been steadily dropping, almost $2 per bushel decline before the price began to rise again. But during that time, the price of bread did not decline in amounts relative to farmer price declines. Yet the farmer is now being blamed for increasing food costs since his price has seen some increases in recent weeks.

The fact is that farm income on a comparative basis is still only three-fourths that of non-farm income. Parity as of July 15 is 75. And that figure would rate a "C" or average on any school grade paper, but it still shows the farmer has a long way to go yet before his income will be comparable with the rest of the economy. So until the farmer gets on an even basis financially, he is not guilty of causing an increase in food prices.

And though farm prices did increase nationwide an average of six per cent from a year ago, prices paid by farmers for production expenses were up 18 per cent from a year ago.

Take a closer look at prices received by Texas farmers and you find only three commodities--oats, hogs and mohair--are above parity. And even though the wheat price has advanced, it still is not at the parity ratio of $4.60.

Break down the price picture into commodities, and you find even more striking evidence of the income situation for farmers. Cotton and cattle are glaring examples.

The average cotton price in Texas is 36.4 cents per pound; parity for cotton is 78.23 cents per pound. Beef cattle averaged $32.50 while parity is $55.70. Calf prices in Texas average $25.40; parity is $68.10.

CATTLE NUMBERS may be finally showing their decline. Nationwide, all cattle and calves totalad 140,100,000 head, an increase of only one per cent from a year earlier. But economists note that if cattle slaughter continues as is now forecast, this year could be the end of the huge cattle build-up.

In Texas, the number of all cattle and calves totaled 17,000,000 head; this is a three percent decline from a year ago. The 1975 Texas calf crop is estimated at 6,100,000 head, down two percent from a year ago.

Stocker cattle numbers on Texas farms, however, are up three per cent from a year ago. All cows and beef cows are down one per cent from a year ago. The northeast part of the state has the highest number of stocker cattle; the Blacklands are second.

HARVEST OF CROPS in Texas continues to make good progress. The grain sorghum crop is now about a third harvested.

Cotton in the South Texas area is ready to harvest but has been slowed due to wet weather. On the High Plains and other sections of the state, the crop is reported to be making excellent progress.

In the Gulf Coast area, rice harvest is about 20 per cent complete; yields in most sections are reported to be satisfactory.

Corn harvest is just getting underway in the state.

PROPOSED changes in Texas seed laws will be discussed at a hearing in Austin August 21. It will be held at 10 a.m. in Room 1046 of the Stephen F. Austin Building.

Purpose is to discuss changes necessary to bring Texas Department of Agriculture rules and regulations into line with recent legislative amendments of the Texas seed law.

Items to be discussed include definitions of terms, noxious weed seeds, service testing, and minimum germination standards for vegetable seeds as well as agricultural seed inspection fees and vegetable seed license fees.

Texas has a nationwide reputation of having one of the finest--if not the finest--seed programs to be found anywhere. One of the reasons for this is the expertise offered by individual seed producers and agricultural producers. The hearing is open to the public.

BRUCELLOSIS continues to make news, too. A public hearing is being called September 4 by the Texas Animal Health Commission to discuss proposed changes in state provisions relating to federal regulations.

Federal authorities continue to intensify efforts to eradicate brucellosis from the nation. Less than one per cent of all herds in the nation are brucellosis-infected.

Brucellosis eradication in Texas will continue to affect livestock producers more and more in the future months as only 23 counties in the state are officially brucellosis-free.

ONCE AGAIN, it's time to be concerned about screwworms. That pest is continuing to make inroads into many counties in the state which haven't had a confirmed case in two years or more.

As a livestock producer, if you're not already cooperating with the program, here is the recommendations again from the officials at the fly lab in Mission:

Check your livestock regularly; treat wounds on livestock with approved screwworm-control remedies; delay surgery on livestock as long as possible; submit suspected samples of screwworms to the fly laboratory at Mission.

Hopefully, this will be the last year in which producers will have to worry too much about the screwworm.

More Moving to the Country

AUSTIN--Retirees and young people are moving back to the country, reversing a 30-year trend, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reports.

Citing USDA figures for the nation, Commissioner White stated that between 1970 and 1973, population in small towns and cities grew by 4.2 per cent, while urban areas increased only 2.9 per cent.

Some reasons for the growth of nonmetro counties are increasing numbers of retired persons, improved job opportunities created by establishment of industries in suburban and rural areas, expansion of state colleges, and increased recreation activity. In addition, the birthrate seems to be higher outside of cities.

TWO-A-DAYS BEGIN

Hot, blistering weather greeted the football squad as the first day of two-a-days started Monday. The Yoemen were issued shorts and T-shirts until Friday when they will be issued pads for the Monday workout.

The young men reported back to workouts in real fine shape and looking like the state champs. The test will come when the pads are put on for the first time since last December.

The varsity workouts are from 8-9:30 and the returns for the second workout is from 6:30-8.

THANKS. . .

Forrest Sapp and Olie Armstrong did a fine job of coaching and taking the Cameron Indians to the finals in the state freshman playoffs in Robins last week.

It's a tough job coaching and an even tougher job when its done for free. The satisfaction is great, but at times it's nice to be recognized. Thanks for a great job!

BAND, YOE STYLE. . .

Rehearsals began Monday for junior high and senior high band students. The band will be doned in new uniforms for the '75 marching season and will present new gleaming style for the Yoemen and Cameron.

The junior high band will be marching at the junior high football half-times, according to asst. band director Gary Beech. This is Gary's first year as a band director. He is a '75 graduate of Texas Tech University.

Gary will also be assisting Yoe band director Jerry Bartley and will be teaching a class in music appreciation on the junior high level.

Season Tickets Available, Football Schedule Listed

Season tickets for the Yoe High football games will go on sale Monday, August 18 for the previous ticket holders at the Yoe High principal's office, according to Jack Chubb.

Season tickets will be priced at $11.25 for reserved seat. Reserved tickets at the gate will be $2.50 and general admission will be $2. Tickets will again be available for students at 75¢ pre-game and will be $2 at game-time.

All tickets not taken by regular season ticket holders will be for sale August 25. All people wanting season tickets and who have not owned ticket before are asked to wait until August 25 when the tickets will be first-come-first-serve.

MURRAY GO ROUND

By Tom Murray

A YEAR'S DIFFERENCE!

Oh, how 12 months can change a man's life! One year ago, Baylor Football Coach Grant Teaff was coming off a 2-9 season after having finished in the SWC Cellar in 1973. His Bear team was selected to finish near dead last again. But, as you know, Teaff booted his Green and Gold home atop the SWC, won Baylor's first SWC Championship in 50 years, defeated Texas and was voted College Coach of the Year. Now, instead of apoligizing, G. Teaff is speaking confidently of putting Baylor among the grid elite. talking openly of "Boosting players for All America, etc,. Ah, the sweet smell of success.

Now comes Emory Bellard to say he's been misquoted. That he sez this will be his best Aggie football team, not the best ever. . .Lou Maysel, Austin American Sports Editor, writes, "California statistical authority Bud Goode rates pass interceptions as being three times more damaging than a fumble turnover. Which is more or less what a guy named Darrell Royall has said all along."

The SWC has produced 69 consensus All-Americas. . . 16 went to the University of Texas,nine to SMU, nine to Okalahoma, and five to Texas A&M. . .Only California has more consensus All-Americans than the state of Texas, 72-69, but the state which holds off the Pacific and all those Hippies, has a considerable buldge in population. . . After Joe Bugner took a second pounding from Ali, LA's Jim Murray wrote. "He (Bugner) is built like a barn door and is about as agile."

DAVID ROYAL

Darrell Royal's 23-year old son, David, is now employed by Prominent Houstor Plaintiff Attorney Joe Jamail., a close Royal friend and UT Supporter. . .A fellow close to the Oklahoma football situation claims Barry Switzer is serious about his campaign to sell Texas schoolboy recruits the idea his coaching staff is younger, and therefore can relate to them better than Royals' UT Braintrust.

Quizzed about Switzer's accusation, one UT defensive player said, "Coach Campbell (Mike, the UT Defensive Boss) is old enough to be Coach Switzer's Daddy. I am 19 years old. I say every single player on our squad can, and does, relate to Coach Campbell and our other experience coaches. We hang on Coach Campbell's words. No, that is simply a bad rap at our coaching staff."

STATE FINALISTS the Cameron Indians lost 3-2 to the state Champs Odessa. The Indians were coached by Forrest Sapp and Olan Armstrong. Couple Exchanges Vows

Miss Susan Diane Tate and Bobby Lyn Pick repeated vows uniting them in marriage recently at St. John Lutheran Church in Thrall with the Rev. James Heineke performing the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Tate Jr. of 1420 Frink St. in Taylor. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Pick of Rt. 3, Taylor.

The altar was decorated with blue and yellow gladiolas and featured a single candle on each side. White satin bows marked the family pews.

Mrs. Leroy Bogan was organist and Mr. and Mrs. David Carlson were vocalists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown designed of white bridal satin with elbow length lace sleeves made in princess lines with a square neckline. The dress was accented with embossed lace trimmed with seed pearls. The bride wore a fitted cap style headpiece designed in venise lace and re-embroidered with large seed pearls and elbow length veil of bridal illusion. She carried a large colonial style bouquet of white daisy mums with white rosebuds baby's breath, and greenery. The bride's only jewelry was a diamond drop necklace presented to her by the bridegroom.

Maid of honor was Miss Sharon Pasemann. Catharine Czimsky of Austin, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore blue gowns of flocked crepe fashioned with empire bodices and A-line skirts with matching voile sleeves, trimmed in white daisy lace. Their hats were white picture hats accented with blue ribbons which matched their dresses. They carried colonial style bouquets of blue and yellow daisy mums.

Best man was Randall Pick, brother of the groom. David Stauffer was groomsman. Donny Pick and Casey Tate served as candlelighters and ushers.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at St. John Lutheran Church Educational Center. Sharon Pick, sister of the groom, and Jan Tate, sister of the bride, registrered guests. Both wore matching dresses ofyellow flocked crepe of a bleted smock style with a square neckline and short sleeves of matching voil with lace edging. They wore daisy corsages and yellow picture hats.

Other members of the houseparty were Mrs. M. J. Janek, Mrs. Bob Dlouhy, Kim Holton, Diana Kreig, and Patricia Zucknick.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Taylor High School and is presently employed by Drs. Fricke, Fason, and Cunningham in Austin.

The groom attended Thrall High School and Texas State Technical Institute in Waco. He is employed with the Kunze Motor Co. in Taylor.

The couple will reside at 219 1/2 Lizzie St. in Taylor.

Fiesta Folklorico Set At Waco

WACO "Fiesta Folklorico" will come to Baylor University Sept. 26 as a part of the university's Latin American Week.

Activities during the special week, scheduled for Sept. 22 through 26,will be open to all Central Texans and will feature various aspects of Lation American culture.

Baylor President Abner V. McCall said the university is sponsoring the week so that "by music, art, literature, religion, movies, and other means we hope to increase our appreciation for the heritage from our Lation American neighbors."

As currently planned, Sept 22 will focus on movies; Sept. 23, art; Sept. 24, literature; Sept. 25, religion; and Sept. 26, music.

Mini courses on Latin American topics will be conducted throughout the week. Other events will include campus-wide exhibits, lectures, an art show, Mariachi Masses, and two performances of "Fiesta Folklorico." All events except the fiesta will be free of charge.

"Fiesta Folklorico" will be staged at 4 and 8:15 p.m. Sept. 26 in Baylor's Waco Hall. The two-hour show of Mexican song and dance is performed by the famed Ballet Aztian of Mexico City, now the National Dance Company of Mexico.

Another Fine Texas Recipe

TURKEY WINGS FRICASSEE

4 young turkey wings (about 2½ lbs.)
¼ c. flour
4 T. butter or shortening
2 medium onions, chopped
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. white pepper
¾ tsp. paprika
4 c. chicken broth
½ c. celery, sliced
2 carrots, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 bay leaf
¼ tsp. rosemary
¼ c. cold water
Wide egg noodles

Rinse wings and pat dry. Combine flour, salt, paprika, and pepper. Roll turkey wings in flour mixture to coat. Reserve remaining flour. Melt butter in Dutch oven or large heavy pot. Brown turkey on all sides. Add onions, garlic, and saute' for 5 minutes. Add broth, carrots, celery, bay leaf, and rosemary. Cover and simmer for 2 to 2½ hours or until turkey is tender. Transfer wings to heated platter. Remove bay leaf. Mix remaining flour with cold water to form a smooth paste; add slowly to hot liquid, stirring to keep smooth. Cook over medium heat about 5 minutes, or until sauce has thickened slightly. Pour over turkey in serving platter. Garnish with parsley. Serve over cooked, buttered noodles. Makes 4 servings.

For additional recipes write Commissioner John C. White, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

The longest pregnancy for a live-born baby was one of 381 days attributed to Mrs. Christine Houghton, 28, of Walberton, Sussex, England, on May 22, 1971. The baby, Tina, weighed 7 lbs. 7 oz.

Bankers Attend School

William Kelm, a vice-president and senior trust officer of The Citizens National Bank graduated August 1 at the 18th session of the Southwestern Graduate School of Banking. The school is held annually at Southern Methodist University. He majored in trust work.

Attending the school for the first time was Ernest Moore, also a vice-president of the Citizens National Bank. He has elected to major in commercial banking.

The school is a three year program with students attending two week sessions during the summer and doing correspondence work during the rest of the year. During the senior year a student must write a thesis or complete two difficult problems.

Most students come from Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas but more than 20 other states are represented by students at the school. California, New York, and Florida are the most distant states represented. Total enrollment this year was 699, the school's largest to date.

The school's faculty of 277 included bank presidents, chairman of bank boards and other bank officers, attorneys, executives of commercial and manufacturing corporations, bank regulators, and professors of finance and banking.

Southwestern Graduate School of Banking, an advanced banking school, prepares bank officers to meet the special responsibilities of being a senior bank officer.

It isn't easy to explain how the Church can help you find strength and comfort. You can't prove it by mathematical equations, but once you experience it, you have no doubts. And, having felt it, you want to share this deep, abiding peace with others.

No matter how stormy it is outside, in the Church you can find peace. Isn't it wonderful to know that you can take all your cares and worries to God and feel His peace and quiet? Then, having found this peace, you can carry it with you wherever you go. Through the Church you can help others find it.

Peace — God's peace — the Church — God's Church. Are you acquainted with them?

Study Aims At Cutting Hospital Cost

A $1.8 million program, jointly funded by federal and private sources and aimed at putting the brakes on runaway health care costs, was announced today by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and officials of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In a Washington news conference, Rockefeller revealed that the Texas Hospital Association (THA) has received a two-year, $900,000 HEW contract to help establish a statewide hospital productivity center to find ways to make hospital care more efficient and less expensive. THA wil match the federal money, dollar by dollar, with its own funds.

The two-year pilot program could lead to savings estimated at more than $14 million annually in participating hospitals. That means the indivuidual patient could save, on the average, $8 per day for care in those hospitals, or $50 per average stay.

HEW and THA hope the Texas project will serve as a model for other states to emulate, thus helping to bring under control the nation's spiraling health care costs. THA officials said the productivity center will rely heavil y on group action as a means for hospital to reduce cotsts.

Two Pesticides Under Fire By Federal Agency

The American urban dweller and agricultural producer both will become immediate losers if the use of two important chlorinate hydrocarbons now under fire are suspended, a Texas A&M University agricultural leader says.

Dr. L. S. "Bill" Pope, associate dean of agriculture, warns that the Environmental Protection Agency's recent action calling for suspension of the two related pesticides--chlordane and heptachlor--could have more impact on increasing costs to consumers than the current Russian grain deal.

The proposed ban poses a serious problem for producers, who depend on the vital chemicals for seed treatment for wire worms and other insents that attack so, gum grains, corn and wheat, and for homeonwers interested in protecting their lawns and gardens from insect damage and their homes from termite problems.

"Since several other pesticides, including DDT, aldrin, and dieldrin, can no longer be manufactureed due to EPA intervention, the chemicals now under fire are the main protective shield against certain damaging insects that affect agricultural production and food supplies.

"With increasing production costs, producers cannot afford a failure,. Early damage to sorghums, corn and wheat crops mean costly replanting, which could exceed additional production costs of $22 million annually. This does not include the cost of soil treatments or yield reductions due to the impact of late plantings," Pope says.

Another agricultural authority, Dr. John Thomas, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station, estimates thatthe cost of alternate broadcast or band applications of chemicals to the soils would run from $5.80 to $12 per acre, compared to present seed treatment costs of 11 to 43 cents an acre.

Any decline in sorghum production will seriously hit the producers' pocketbook and invariably raise the cost of food to consumers, the two men warn.

"For example, a 7 percent hthrough ineffective seed treatment of wheat, or a 3 percent loss of the total corn crop for the same reason would just about equal the amount of each commodity sold to Russia thus far in 1975. While the public i s greatly concerned about outshipments of grains to other countries, a bigger problem may be the loss of vital chemicals so necessary for food production," Pope says.

While the EPA suspension order exlcludes the use of these chemicals for termite damage and non-food plants such as ornamentals, Pope says that past experience of other pesticide manufacturers is that they cannot afford to continue rproduction of a so-called "questionable" chemicals for one or two uses.

"Hence, the danger is that the two pesticides may be removed altogether. At present there are simply no available and effective substitutes for many of the uses of these chemicals," Pope says.

While the EPA must, as one of its charges, carefully evaluate and scrutinize chemicals for possible toxicity and carcenogenic effects, the risk-benefit ration also must be considered, he emphasizes.
